Hello Institutional,

The School of Business and Technology invites our community to celebrate our students winning 2nd place at the 2025 HBCU Battle of the Brains competition!

A dynamic group of computer science and business administration students collaborated for a 24-hour challenge, presenting a comprehensive solution that incorporated design, policy, business and STEM components. The judges were impressed not only by the innovative solution they proposed but also by the clarity and professionalism of their presentation.

This achievement highlights the exceptional talent within our student body, and we are incredibly proud of their commitment and determination. Congratulations to the entire team on this well-deserved success!

2025 Financial Wellness Symposium

Join us on Saturday, April 5, for a half-day filled with insightful presentations, interactive workshops, and opportunities to network with experts in the field of finance.

NSBE President and Women in Tech President, HT chapters, were among the student leaders in attendance. Our students are changemakers of diversity in the tech industry, and the conference highlighted the impactful role that student organizations play in fostering a supportive environment for underrepresented groups.

Highlights of the event include a keynote presentation on the current state of the economy during breakfast, leaning how to kick off your small business during lunch, and concurrent sessions on the latest trends in investment management.

Don't miss this chance to take control of your financial future and register today to confirm your spot!
