Global Horizons: A Transformative Journey to Ghana!

SBT Events

Greetings Institutional,

This June, the School of Business and Technology embarked on an unforgettable global trip to Ghana, Africa, offering our students a truly immersive and enriching experience. This annual summer trip, a highlight of our MBA program, consistently provides unparalleled opportunities for global engagement and cultural understanding.

The journey was a profound exploration of Ghanaian culture and its vibrant economy. The trip offered invaluable learning sessions with the Institute of Fiscal Studies and the Ghana Chamber of Commerce, gaining a firsthand understanding of Ghana's economic landscape and development strategies.

Beyond academic learning, the trip held particular significance from the perspective of the Black diaspora. Ghana, as the first sub-Saharan African nation to gain independence, holds a powerful symbolic place for many in the diaspora, representing resilience, self-determination, and a profound connection to ancestral roots. Visiting historical sites and engaging with the local community offered a deeply moving and educational experience, fostering a richer understanding of shared histories and futures.

If you're inspired by the prospect of such transformative experiences through your business education, there's still time to apply to our esteemed MBA program! The application deadline is July 18. Don't miss this opportunity to expand your horizons and become a part of our dynamic community.

Thank You!

Celebrating Our Center for Financial Wellness & Investment

We're thrilled to share the fantastic progress of our Center for Financial Wellness and Investment!

A huge thank you to our incredible partners at First United Bank! They have truly been instrumental in bringing financial literacy to our campus community.

For the past four sessions, Cheremma Lee, Al George, Lisa Bolden, and Pilar Castillo have consistently delivered engaging and insightful content, making complex financial concepts easily digestible for everyone. From budgeting basics to investment strategies, they've empowered HT students, faculty, and staff to take control of their financial futures.

Stay tuned for more exciting initiatives from the Center for Financial Wellness and Investment as we continue to grow and empower our community on their financial journeys!

Student Internship Spotlight: Emmanuel Idris

We're incredibly proud to shine a spotlight on Emmanuel Idris, a driven business student from Huston-Tillotson University and a member of our Real Estate Scholars Program.

This summer, Emmanuel is gaining invaluable real-world experience as an intern at the Texas Housing Conservancy! He's contributing to the Conservancy's investment fund, which is dedicated to preserving workforce multifamily housing.

As a proud Nigerian and student-athlete, Emmanuel brings a unique perspective and passion to his work. He's eager to be part of the next generation of leaders shaping inclusive cities, both in the United States and back home in Nigeria. His belief that real estate can boost economic mobility, motivate disadvantaged communities, and bridge housing gaps truly embodies the spirit of our program.

We're thrilled to see Emmanuel applying his skills and making a difference in such a vital area of real estate!
